

Colonial Home Exteriors

I like the idea of building a colonial style home in the woods. The exterior would look something like this.

I really like the idea of having a black house. I have seen a few of them in Stamford.

Home in New England

I never understood why my homes on Talavera Trail, Haviland Court, and Mary Helen had attics that were not livable. They could only be used as small storage spaces. The other parts of the attics were filled with foam insulation - all that wasted space. The houses below utilize their “attics” as a third floor.

Colonial Home Interiors

I love wood floors. I can instantly see and feel the difference between wood floors and vinyl floors that look like wood. Wood in a home has a calming effect (or maybe I just ate too many mushrooms—that's a joke about psychedelics, in case you didn't catch it). I wish my desks and bookshelves were made of high-quality hardwood. That reminds me of a quote I recently heard—hardwood grows slowly. Good things take time, right?

This colonial home has beautiful hardwood floors and hardwood exposed ceilings in some of the rooms

I love the exposed copper plumbing on the left. Look at those floors! I really like the red and blue rugs, too.

My favorite characteristic of colonial homes is their compartmentalized rooms. I am not fond of open floor plans.

My 30th Birthday

I recently took a day off. I was suffering from exhaustion because my parents stopped supporting me. Now, I'm some kind of a clerk fighting to break away from subsistence.

I started my day off by watching a movie called 13 Going On 30, where a 13-year-old girl wishes to be thirty, flirty, and thriving, and her dream came true. She woke up one day as a beautiful 30-year-old women who had it all. She even had enough money to buy new clothes. What a life! Here's to wishing I could be 13 again. I bought myself a cookie cake.

Black Coarse Pepper – It's just better

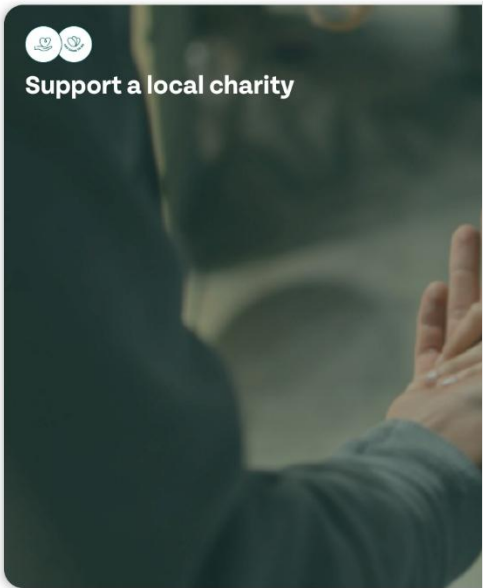

Avocado Bread is Pretty Good Too

Too Good To Go

Today, I heard about a company that connects customers to restaurants and stores that sell their leftover food at a discount instead of throwing it away. I thought it was a great way to try new restaurants. So, I downloaded their app and bought some leftovers from a pizza parlor down the street for only $3.99 plus tax. The fun part about the service is that the customer never knows what type of leftovers he will get from the restaurant or store.

Surprise Bags in your area

3 left

The Original Pappas
Pizza Downtown St...

Surprise Bag
Pick up today: 21:30 - 22:00

★ 3.5 | 0.4 mi

$4.99

Invoice

Date 11/16/24
Invoice No. TGTG_914230-519
Order ID p9f5qsm53fqq1

Description	Quantity	Price	Total
Westover Pizzeria	1	$3.99 (USD)	$3.99 (USD)
State sales tax, 7.35%			$0.29 (USD)
Total			$4.28 (USD)

Invoice issued by Too Good To Go in the name and on behalf of Westover Pizzeria
This invoice has been paid with:
Google Pay

$4.28 (USD)

I was not a fan of the pizza. But the pig-in-the-blanket was a nice surprise. And the other items were delicious (I do not know what they are called, they both had beef, cheese, and vegetables).

Here's a video about Too Good to Go. Click the link below. You may need to press Ctrl while clicking the link for it to open.

We Turned Leftover Restaurant Food Into A \$162 Million/Year Business

